Backstory

Capitaine Felix Blanc has taken his treasure to a lonely island in the middle of the Caribbean. With a few trusted men, he has chosen a site to where he can bury his treasure, a fortune in gold and silver.

Unfortunately, he has decided to murder the burial party, in order to retain the secrecy of the treasure's location. . . . Capitaine Blanc has ordered a few trusted men accompanying the burial party to murder them after they have completed their task of hiding the treasure. He returns to his ship, the Fleur de Cerise, and leaves quickly, hoping to strand the murderers on the island too.
